Since its inception, C@R has placed high value on ensuring equitable access to early and K-12 education. To drive change in this area, C@R works closely with stakeholders to discuss reform strategies and advance policies to improve the quality of and access to education. C@R highlighted key issues including pandemic learning loss during COVID-19, tracked how ESSER dollars are being spent on our children, and released our Annual School Rankings to highlight the quality of Texas Schools. C@R also highlighted research around child care deserts in Texas and worked to increase access to and the quality of the subsidized child care system and ensure equity in the system for both the children and the child care workforce.

C@R established the Center to End the Trafficking and Exploitation of Children (CETEC) in 2007 to launch a broad educational and outreach program to combat human trafficking. C@R continued to grow the Cities Empowered Against Sexual Exploitation (CEASE) Texas project and convened nonprofits, state agencies, law enforcement and local governments in a statewide Anti-Demand Coalition to share knowledge, best practices and lessons learned. C@R also developed critical research around opportunity youth (youth ages 16-24 who are neither in school nor in the workforce), highlighting policies that can put these young people on a path to success and prevent them from being exploited.

Our annual School Food rankings highlight top-performing districts with school food programs and highlight innovations and best practices adopted by top districts. Through our Childhood Immunization Project, C@R also collaborated with key partners to help maintain the current code that establishes immunization requirements for Texas elementary and secondary schools and ensure equitable access to childhood immunizations.
